Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The online Journal of Open Innovation: Technology, Market, and Complexity (JOLtmC) provides an academic agora for research findings in areas related to open innovation, open business models, and complexity in the open innovation and 4th industrial revolution paradigm. JOLtmC also covers the complexity, emergence, and dynamics of economy and engineering, in addition to new research methods such as system dynamics, AMB simulations, algorithm building, network analyses, and intensive qualitative case studies in addition to existing research methods. JOLtmC aims to assist in conquering the growth limits of capitalism by being more open to new perspectives such as those proposed by Schumpeter, Keynes, the principles of political economy, and the complexity theory among others. We look forward to working with you to publish high quality studies in these areas.
